The Sudanese people have won a great victory in their steadfastness and steadfastness in their principles and adherence to their demands to overthrow the totalitarian regime and dismantle its institutions and to try its symbols through its peaceful revolution which it carried out over the past four months. This culminated in a large sit-in before the General Command of the Armed People's Forces recently on 6 April which is same date in April 1985, which toppled the regime of former President Jaafar Nimeiri, and a number of states witnessed demonstrations and sit-ins similar, and the members of the armed forces officers and soldiers of the rebels and joined the sit-in, and despite the success of the sit-in to achieve a partial and limited change, but has not satisfy the demands of the Sudanese people.

The rebels have forced the head of the required regime of the International Criminal Court Marshal Omar al-Bashir to step down and transfer power to his first deputy and his defense minister, who announced after 24 hours his waiver of his deputy in the Transitional Military Council has resorted to Bashir and his assistants to those procedures to hand over power to the armed forces as a popular demand for the protesters in front of the General Command, Which demanded the intervention of the armed forces and the overthrow of Bashir and his assistants and the handover of power to the people and the formation of a civil government involving all political forces, for a transitional period of four years after which the holding of free and fair elections.

But the results are disappointing and the expectations of a military coup from within the palace plan and management of the head of the regime itself and his assistants in the Islamic movement, they are all partners in the looting of the wealth and wealth of the country and divide them among the biggest corruption not witnessed by Sudan before, in addition to war crimes and crimes against humanity They committed it in all parts of Sudan, and after the damage they inflicted on the homeland, Bashir returned power to the army in a poor play, the change of people and ranks and the continuation of the system as it is and evidence of the presence of elements of the Islamists between the membership of the Transitional Council, a manipulation and circumvention of the demands of the Sudanese people, Hide their crimes and the destruction of all documents and evidence found guilty during the next two years from the age of the upcoming transition period, and it is unlikely to return their ambitions another interface during the next phase.

The Arab Coalition for Sudan strongly condemns these measures and the continuation of the Islamic regime in power by exchanging power without procedures to ensure peaceful deliberation and political participation "from military to other military" while continuing to implement the "flawed" emergency law.

The Arab Coalition For Sudan Accepting the resignation of the director of the security apparatus and intelligence team, Salah Abdullah "Qosh" without arresting with the symbols of the system and investigate and submit to a fair trial, and refuses to coalition restructuring the security apparatus and demanding its dissolution as one of the institutions of the corrupt system accountability of his followers.

The Arab Coalition for Sudan also deplores the appointment of the head of the Janjaweed militia, Mohamed Hamdan Daglo, as a deputy to the president of the Transitional Military Council, in a strange situation and contrary to the constitution and international conventions. He is accused of committing war crimes in Darfur and maintaining his militias as a parallel force to the armed forces, The weapon is outside the scope of the law and is disbursed from the state budget. Its members enjoy immunity from any legal or accounting procedures, despite war crimes and crimes against humanity in Darfur, Southern Kordofan, Blue Nile, Kassala and Khartoum. Grave on the demonstrators, in September 2013 and December 2018.

The Arab Coalition for Sudan rejects my appointment as Vice-President of the Transitional Military Council, which is a provocation to the families of the victims, displaced persons and refugees who have not been able to access the judiciary. This has helped to avoid impunity and the regime's failure to implement justice. The regime or punish the perpetrators in Darfur, which includes among its members one of the warlords and his forces followed the head of the regime directly Bashir.

The Arab Coalition for Sudan warns of any attempts to stop the sit-in or the exposure of revolutionaries using force and weapons, and recall that the right to assembly and demonstration is guaranteed by the Sudanese Constitution and international covenants, and any attempt to disperse them is a confiscation of freedom of expression and reinstates the violence that has claimed dozens of lives before.

The Arab Coalition for Sudan (ACS) was established in May 2008 and has more than 130 civil society organizations in 19 Arab countries that advocate for the protection and assistance of those suffering from the effects of conflict throughout Sudan and seek peace for them.
